7 Tanning.

1st Wash and soak in pure water.
2nd the unhairing. This is effected by the use of lime and scraping with a blunt-edged knife. When lime is employed about 4 bus. are slacked and put into a large vat of clean water capable of holding 40 hides or 200 calf-skins. The lime is well mixed by a plunger and the hides or skins are then put into it and allowed to remain from 7 to 10 days for the former and 10 to 14 days for the latter drawing them out daily to facilitate the process.

When the hair will slip they are taken out of the lime and plunged into clean water from which they go to the beam where the hair is scraped off with a long curved blunt edged knife. They are immersed in water again and taken back to the beam and all the flesh removed from the inside of the hide or skin with a sharp knife similar in shape to the one used in unhairing. After which they are ready for - 3 bating - as it is all important to have the skins soft and in a condition to absorb the tanning liquor readily. This is ~~very~~ accomplished by putting them in water impregnated with pigeon dung, pigeons.

chney, 1 bus. being enough for the number of hides or skins above named. This is called A bath and acts by means of the muriate of ammonia which it contains, the lime taking the acid becomes muri-ate of lime which is soluble and easily washed and washed out of the skins while the ammonia passes off in a gaseous state.
Hides intended for sole leather should remain 24 hours in this bath when they may be washed out and are ready for the bark extract, calf skins or other upper leather should remain in the bath from 3 to 5 days according to the weather (A longer time being required in cold than in hot weather).

and during this time they are taken out 2 or 3 times and placed in the beam where they are scraped first on the grain side and lastly on the both flesh and grain with a worker similar to the one used in unhairing, after which they are ready for 4 tannings.

When the hides or skins are taken from the beam house they are put into cups containing A weak solution of ground bark and should be handled two or three times A day till they are evenly colored when they should go into A stronger liquor where they may remain A week being taken out daily and allowed to drain off at the same time strengthening the rope. They may now be considered ready for laying away. For this purpose a vat is half filled with a very strong extract of bark and the hides or skins are carefully laid in one at a time each being covered with finely ground bark to the depth of half an inch until all are thus laid away about a foot apart. When it is put on for a hardening and the vat is covered with boards.

The hides or skins may be allowed to remain in this their first layer for two weeks, at which time they must be taken up, washed clean in the liquor and the same process repeated using a new liquor and fresh bark, as the tanning proceeds the extract is exhausted more slowly and from 3 weeks to 1 month may be allowed for each successive layer after the first 3 layers being enough for calf skins and 4 to 6 for sole skin according to the thickness of the hides.

When the sole leather is tanned it is taken out of the vats washed clean and hung up to dry in the rolling loft. When nearly dry it is rolled on the grain with a brass roller until it is quite smooth hung up again and dried thoroughly.

8 Violet Ink.

8 parts of Logwood and 64 parts of Water, boil down to one half, then strain and add one part of Chloride of tin.

9 Water-cement, or Stucco.

take 56 lbs. of pure coarse Sand, 42 lbs. of pure fine Sand mix them together and moisten them thoroughly with lime water, to the Wetted Sand add 14 lbs. of pure freshburnt lime and while heating them up together add in successive portions 14 lbs. of bone ash.

The quicker and more perfectly these materials are beaten together and the sooner they are used the better will be the cement. for some kinds of Work fine Sand alone is better and for other Coarse Sand.

remembering the finer the Sand the greater quantity of lime is required.

10. Currying Calfskins

When Calf skins are sufficiently tanned they should be rinsed in the liquor in the vats and hung over poles and slightly hardened being careful not to expose them to the direct rays of the sun in the Summer Months.

put into piles so that they will not dry and becoming very flat that may have become so dry.

They are now skinned over a barrier, beam during which process the rough flesh is taken off and the butts and heads are leveled and the rough edges trimmed off. The skins are then rinsed off, slicked on a marble table with a steel slicker and stiff brush on the flesh side the dirt and coloring matter of the bark stained brushed, and slicked out on the grain side.

They should then be hung up by a loop but in the head, for a few hours. That the water may be perfectly dried out of them. They must be then taken down and placed in a pit and are ready for stuffing.

The grease called dubbing is composed of equal parts of both liver oil and melted tallow and when ready the skin is laid on a wooden table and slicked on the flesh side.

The stretch is in this manner taken out and the skin should be perfectly smooth on the table before the dubbing is coated on, for which purpose a brush or pad is used.
The quantity put on varying according to the thickness of the skin. They are not hung up by the hind quarters but allowed to dry.

When entirely dry, they must be taken down and piled flesh side to flesh side and grain to grain and should remain for a week or two so as to become an even color and also to absorb the strength of the grease. When ready to finish the grease must be slicked off on a finishing table (made of cherry or mahogany wood) and the skins are softened by rolling them with a barrel having fine grooves but in it, the surface of the flesh side is smoothed by shaving over it with a currier's knife which has a very fine and delicate edge turned on it so that the smallest quantity is taken off, then process is termed whitening the skins are then stretched on the grain side and all wrinkles and breaks taken out and a fine grain turned on them with a smooth barrel or with very fine grooves but in it. They are matched for size, laid in a pile the larger ones in the bottom and blacked on the flesh side with a compound of lampblack tanners oil or a dubbing and a small quantity of water to prevent it from striking through as they are blacked they are laid over A strip they must now be fastened to prevent the black from rubbing off.

The past is A composed of Wheat flour and boiling water stirring in A small quantity of Soap and tallow and is applied with A brush coating them with as small A quantity as possible

They are hung up by the loop in the head and dried then washed with A polished glass slider on the flesh side and are ready for the last process gumming. The gum used is gum tragacanth dissolved in water and is applied with A sponge on the flesh side turning up and and thoroughly dried.

They are ready for sale, or use.

Hard Times

1st Let us pause in life's pleasures and brunt its many tears while we all sigh sorrow with the poor thou art come that will linger for ever in our ears oh hard times come again no more.

Chorus.

Oh the song the sigh of the weary hard times hard times come again no more Oh weary you have lingered about my cabin Oh for all hard times come again no more and should she weep with friendly sips thou her tears away, is the gentlest of the brother sination his lot may be and do thou his shortening, scan with heart-felt cheering.

When tears of grief bedim his eye Then be thou by his side it a joy, joins in his mirth if rude, sing gently, while I speak gently to thy fellow man of high or holy birth

Speak gently, to him if his poor or rich in things of earth

Speak gently, thou to every one Kind words will cost thee naught and every one will prove it true

Noble Brave Boys of Kansas

1st I'll tell you about a mob meeting

Which made all the mobbers look like Which has lately been held in the City By the noble Brave Boys of Kansas

2nd old Williams came out on the Barr With a Drunken mean mobbercat brew and declared they would march in and ^{Cricket} ~~and~~ all the noble Brave Boys of Kansas

3rd the Germans also came a running and quickly they raised a flag too Like horses madly forward for the ^{battle}

4th on Sunday the sun shone in splendor and bravely we marched the streets ~~tramp~~ for the battle field we were all ready the noble Brave Boys of Kansas 5th the ladies all flock'd to the windows in dress in purple, in green and in blue to show how they'd stick to good order with the noble Brave Boys of Kansas

6th the mobbers they flew back to earth Except it was merely a few

Who had from our gallant Committee Learn the noble Brave Boys of Kansas 7th Poor McAllen then burst out a crying and the tears flow'd as pure as dew for he heard that the Sheriff was coming
8th the mobbers for home they did scamper and the track that they left was quite blue for as soon they would fight against as the noble Brave Boys of Kansas ^(thunder) 9th farewell then to all the mob party Remember this over thing ^{is} ~~is~~ true their daint and elegant ~~read~~ and their milliner fingers and faces

I'm a second in half the ~~world~~ but give me in place of them all my girl in her Calico dress.

2nd She is plump as a partridge and fair as the rose in its earliest bloom her teeth will with ivory compare and her breath with the flower perfume her step is as free and as light as the fawns whom the hunters hard press and her eye is as soft and as bright my girl in her Calico dress.

3rd She is dandier and, I believe, more of her simple but modest attire but the charms she permits to appear would set at naught icebergs in fire she can dance but she never allows the hugging the severe and crowd she is saving all these for her spouse my girl in her Calico dress.

4th She is engaged to him and he and mind to her father and mother one studies now much she has and her secret little sister and brother.
